WANTED A TUNNEL

Through Wheeling Hill, but County Commissioners Set Down On

THE PROPOSITION OF MR. HARE.

His Idea Included the Appointment of Committees of Council and the Board of County Commissioners to Met Jointly and Discuss the Project—It is an Old Project that Will Materialize Some Day.

The old scheme to put a tunnel through Wheeling hill at Tenth street, and having its eastern terminus at Baker and McCulloch streets, East End, thus shortening the highway of travel to the suburban communities half a mile or more, has been given another whirl, this time by County Commissioner Andrew S. Hare, of Centre district, who introduced the following resolution at the meeting of the board of commissioners yesterday afternoon:

Whereas, Public improvements are always advantageous to the tax-payers of both the city and county.

Resolved, That a committee of three, one of whom shall be the president, be appointed to confer with a committee from the city council, as to the advisability of cutting a roadway tunnel through Wheeling hill.

The resolution was discussed at some length, Mr. Hare being its most earnest advocate, but when it came to a vote the opposition was found to be strong enough to shelve the proposition in its infancy. The objectors took the ground that the county should not be made to undertake any extensive improvement like the one proposed within the limits of the city.

The scheme was advocated by Richard Robertson, now clerk of the county court, several years ago when he was president of the Ohio Valley Trades Assembly. At the time there was much idleness, the period being just after the passage of the Wilson bill, and Mr. Robertson's idea was to give employment to people who needed it badly. The movement was not successful.

The board granted a liquor license to Milton Parker, of Fulton.

The board's regular monthly meeting will be held next Monday.

JOHN SCHAEFFER HURT.

Fell Between Two Freight Cars and Was Taken Home in the Ambulance.

Last evening, about half-past six o'clock, John Schaeffer, an employe of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, while engaged in switching cars in the yards south of the creek, was injured seriously by falling between two box cars, and at the same time escaped what nine times out of ten would have been instant death.

It appears that Schaeffer was running along the tops of the cars, jumping from one to the other, when in some manner he misjudged the distance between two of them and fell, striking heavily on the bumpers below.

Fortunately the train had just stopped moving, otherwise he would have been crushed beneath the wheels. Fellow workmen who saw him fall rushed to his assistance, and lifted him out of danger. The city ambulance was called, and the injured man was taken to his home, at the corner of Jacob and Thirty-seventh streets.

Dr. Armbricht was called in, and an examination showed that the man's hip was badly bruised and his back sprained, but no fatal results are anticipated.

George Neumeier, Menasha, Wis., writes: "My trouble was catarrh of the head, throat and stomach. After the use of one bottle of Pe-ru-na I could eat and sleep well. I feel entirely well now, and think there can be no better medicine than Pe-ru-na." Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O., for a free book.
